Step in the right direction: building a neurological resident workforce in the United States. The number of neurosurgeons has decreased by 20% since 1991, with no increase in the number of graduating residents. In order to produce more neurosurgeons, we need to produce more residents. What factors have an impact on the number of residents a program can produce? What can be done to increase the number of residents produced? This review presents the current state of U.S. neurosurgical resident production and discusses the factors that have an impact on the number of residents that a program can produce. 156 Ga. App. 889 (1980) 275 S.E.2d 641 PAGE 5. THE STATE, 68897. Court of Appeals of Georgia. Submitted January 16, 1980. Decided February 27, 1980. Vicki L. Leaverton, for appellant. Nicholas J. Nisnam, for appellee.

During a tour through Bhutan, one guide told us that there is a small fee to use the bathroom. I asked him why they didn't just put a pot for pissing in the street. This is the response I got: There is no pot for pissing in the street. Actually, Bhutanese use a bath, and the lady at the end of the hall will smell you, and then tell you where to go. Why do we use this bathroom? A: The fact that Bhutan is a low-income, third world country only applies to the Bhutanese citizens. As Bhutan is a constitutional monarchy, the king and his subjects (barring the very poor and some other exceptions) enjoy the privilege of government-provided services, most notably roads, utilities, transportation, health services, and education. The King is entitled to any services provided by the government. For instance, the government provides security to the King of Bhutan (1) in such numbers that he could only use his own personal bodyguards if he wanted to, and (2) at his own discretion. (1) A royal bodyguard might be composed of 10-20 soldiers armed with M-16s, automatic weapons, grenades and more. (2) The King might have 500 soldiers or more who are at his service. The government has done everything to ensure that the government-provided services to the King are the best in the country, and generally at a higher standard than the state-provided services for the public at large. In such a case, a common person has no voice in whether the bathroom has a toilet or a bathtub. In fact, toilet and bath are one 3da54e8ca3
