Berzerk from Herzog Zwei: Berzerk Ball! You play Berzerk as a commando in a futuristic world without guns. Berzerk Ball features a very unique control scheme with a lot of original gameplay features. Berzerk Ball is a short, fun game and a sequel to Berzerk Ball 2. There are no weapons in Berzerk Ball but you will have to shoot with your body. All you have is a baton and a few pads and you have to use them to destroy the other guys in the arena. The game features mind bending levels, unusual camera angles, over the shoulder gameplay and many more. There are 16 levels with two gameplay types. The freeplay mode is a bit easier since you can save your progress at any time.

The score attack mode is harder and you have to beat your opponent's high score. Hero's Arms Hero's Arms is a fast paced action platformer made by THQ in 1998. This game was never released in any other language than English and was mostly unknown outside of the THQ series and modders. A sequel was planned but never materialised. The game has been compared to Castlevania games and has a similar combat system. This action platformer offers a great gameplay experience and though the game has no story, it is quite an entertaining game with 10 levels, 5 bosses and a final death chase.

Swordless Ninja Swordless Ninja is a very simple hack n' slash game which has a unique and original story. The story unfolds when a group of ninjas are sent to obtain a golden sword. The story is set in a futuristic Japanese setting. This game is highly praised for the level design, story, sound, gameplay and controls. This first person game was created in 2003 and inspired the infamous Ninja Blade. When you kill the enemy, a little Ninja will pop out of their body and attack you again. Rocket Santa Rocket Santa is a game in which you are sitting on a rocket that can fly down. The DB Freight: 1970s add-on (or "Ruhr-Sieg Route" in German) enables fans of German railways to expand their freight operations and recreate typical German freight trains from the 1970s. Tractive power for these freight trains is provided by the BR151 freight locomotive in green and ocean-blue/beige, typical of the era. For shunting duties within your freight yards, there is also the distinctive and tiny BR323 shunter in the correct red livery, a low-powered locomotive which could be found at most large stations in the 1970s. Also included are 32 freight wagons with different loads and liveries, considerably expanding the available freight stock for German routes in Train Simulator.

With scenarios included, there is plenty of variety and lots to keep you occupied as you take on the role of German freight train driver, 1970s-style! The new Project STRIKES! has a total of seven stages. Each stage has a different theme and audio track! Depending on your choice you can choose between a Short Story and a Full Story, for example "Battle For Love" and "A Fight For Love".

Also, you can choose the difficulty level. The new Project STRIKES! will be released in several platform including PC, PS4 and XBOX ONE. The Story of STRIKES! In this project we are trying to build a simple online story which features a PVP mode.

In this PVP mode, you and your opponent will be fighting by computerized AI. This is where the "STRIKES!" part of the title comes from. Each of the 3 characters will be fighting against the other 2 characters and even against you. The winner will be the one with the highest score. The rules are simple, whoever wins the fight will have a better chance to win the next fight and the game will continue. If one of the characters dies, it will be reset back to the start and the fight will continue in the same manner. This story is 100% free, meaning it does not cost you any money at all to play. You can play this online for as long as you want. In the PVP mode we are trying to make the fights much longer than the match found in conventional fighting games. So, in order to be able to properly show our characters we have decided to use motion capture to move the models. The good news is that we have not used any motion capture so far! What this means is that we can take any of the 3 characters and give them any costume. So you don't need to worry about lacking in character as it will be easy to dress up your character according to your favorite character. According to some information we got from our beta testers, it is good that we are creating unique fight scenes, but some people do not enjoy training nor do they want to rush through fights either. For this reason, we have put in a training mode where you can completely prepare your character in terms of strength and abilities. This is done by granting your character the items from the character's gear. You can imagine this scenario. You are playing a match and suddenly your character is thrown into a dungeon. This practice mode allows you to earn more stamina and energy for a better performance in the match, once
