Slow Cooker Backpacking Stew Following the recent unseasonably warm weather this winter, I was craving hearty hot food to warm me up. I want a bowl of stew to go with some bread and to put on the table for our neighbors. So I made a combination of different leftovers and I am happy with how it turned out. No complaints. It filled us up and was easy to make. I only needed one pot to cook both the hashbrowns and the potatoes. All of our favorite flavors combined to make a wonderful meal. In the winter, it is hard to find vegetables that I enjoy. But luckily, I had some carrots, onions, potatoes, and beef broth left over from a quick and easy meat stew recipe. I used this same pot to make the stew. However, I did not want my stew to have the same flavor as the previous dish. The key is to play with the different flavors and make it your own. First, I peeled and diced two small onions. Then I seasoned the onions with some salt and pepper and sauteed them for about five minutes. I added a tablespoon of brown sugar and sauteed that too. This was to sweeten the onions a bit. I chopped two medium potatoes and an apple. Then I cut the apple up into small cubes and tossed them in a colander. I covered the colander with some paper towels to absorb the juice. Next, I diced a medium carrot and peeled and chopped two stalks of celery. To get my broth and vegetables started, I put a tablespoon of butter and some olive oil in a large skillet. Sautéed the onions until light golden brown. Then I added the remaining ingredients to my skillet, the chopped carrots, celery, and potatoes. I added more olive oil and sauteed the vegetables for about 5 minutes. I then added the contents of the paper towel colander. The solids moved down in the pot as the liquids evaporated. As the liquids were evaporating, I added the hot broth from the soup pot. I continued to simmer the stew for about 20 minutes. Then I added the hashbrowns and simmered that for 10 minutes. Then I added the diced apples and simmered for about five more minutes. To serve, I sprinkled some breadcrumbs on top, but you could also serve 6d1f23a050
